Ohio had a temperance party, and yet the Republicans rolled up a round majority. Wisconsin will show itself no less loyal.

President Arthur's nomination of Mr. Blaine's oldest son, Walker, as Assistant Secretary of State, is a practical indication of a friendly feeling between Arthur and Blaine.

President Arthur in sending in his nominations has certainly acted with the utmost respect to the wishes and judgment of his lamented predecessor. Nearly all were appointments decided upon by Garfield.

Boston wants the next International Exposition located there. It is most generous for the Boston folk to offer to quit their books for a little while, and set up brown bread and beans for the whole world. As Boston is the hub, by all means let it have this hub-bub.

The Democrats realize now the bad blunder they made on last Monday in the Senate. So eager were they for power that they forgot their cunning, and while they kept three rightful representatives knocking at the door for admission, they elevated Bayard to the chair. They displayed to the country their greed, and lost all their gain.

It is amusing to notice the different spirit in which the Tammany hall and Irving hall Democrats take the rejection of their delegates by the State convention. John Kelly, the former's sachem, says that though rejected, despised and humiliated, he loyally bows beneath the whip. From the other hall comes a charge of injustice and a cry of fraud.

Senator Jones, of Florida, must have felt highly flattered by the effect of his remarks, the only ones made, opposing the resolution by which David Davis was elected President pro tem. No one deigned to answer Jones, and the vote was taken without any more attention being paid to what he said than if it was only a gust of wind which had crept through a crevice.

The Democrats seem to be spending most of their time in patting the prohibition party on the back, while they wink knowingly to the boys behind them. Intelligent men, who have long been loyal to the ever progressive Republican party, will not be thus easily drawn into the service of a party, which has always yelled the loudest and done the least, for reform, of any party ever organized.

The burning of Landerberger's mill in Philadelphia, causing the loss of twenty lives, has called forth a general howl about criminal carelessness in arranging buildings. These howls should come before a fire, instead of after it. They would do more good, and save more lives. Every city should have its building inspectors, and should enact such wise regulations, and enforce them so rigidly, that all such carelessness would be done away with, and if any building is unsafe let the people keep howling before it burns, and not wait until it is in ashes.

The La Crosse Chronicle says: "We are rather at a loss what to say regarding the election of Hon. David Davis to the Presidency of the Senate, by the Republicans." Like the rest of the Democratic party it is paralyzed, and the surprise added to the shame of having shown such unseemly greed for power for one day, and all to no purpose, naturally leads to the feeling that "we are at a loss what to say." We should think they would feel like keeping still about the whole affair, as the record of the week does not show up very brightly for the Democrats.

While there is a general willingness that Guiteau should have a full hearing and a fair trial, yet the people ill brook the wasting of time or deferring of justice on account of mere technicalities. It is suggested that the judges before whom he is to be tried are desirous that every technicality known to the law be tested for the benefit of the legal profession, but the public will impatiently denounce any attempt to turn the trial into a law school. Let the hanging be got out of the way first, and then the lawyers can spend all the time they desire in splitting hairs and sticking them together again.

The British government is very reasonable in its demand, that the land bill shall have a fair trial, and that the government authority shall be maintained, but it is entering with some seeming rashness on its vigorous policy, the very first move being the throwing of Parnell into jail. It has caused a wave of intense excitement to sweep over Ireland, and will tend to embitter rather than conciliate the people. It recommits the government to the policy of ruling only by force, and to command obedience by reason of superior strength, rather than inspire respect by virtue or reason.

It is pretty well settled that Postmaster General James will remain in the Cabinet until the star-route cases are disposed of. This will not suit the star-route men, but it will please the people greatly. James has taken hold of abuses in his department without gloves, and has handled them in a manner which has inspired a confidence not only in his honesty, but in his knowledge of even the details of the postoffice work. Men equally honest may be found for the place, but few there are who are so practically conversant with both regulations and practices. By all means let him finish the work he has begun, and if he should be retained permanently the people would be still better pleased. A man who is not only willing to take hold of abuses but who always knows where to find them, is just the kind of a man who should be kept in such a position.

THE NATION'S GUESTS.

Quite an Ovation to the French and German Guests of the Great Republic.

WASHINGTON, October 14.—The French and German guests of the Republic, who are to participate in the celebration of the battle of Yorktown, arrived in the city last night, and were entertained by the authorities to-day. The show was not particularly imposing, but the visitors seemed to enjoy it, and they saw enough of the personnel of the executive and judicial departments to form an idea of the sort of men who control the government.

At 1 o'clock the gentlemen were given a short reception at the State department. All of the members of the cabinet were present. M. Outrey, the French Minister, introduced the French guests and the German Charge d'Affaires presented the descendants of Baron Von Steuben to the members of the cabinet. The reception took place in the secretary's room. There was no formal interchange of expressions, but the visitors were individually presented to the Secretary of State and his ministerial assistants. A general shaking of hands and some conversation followed, after which the party entered carriages and joined the procession to the Capitol.

This procession was composed exclusively of local military and civic societies. There were the Light Infantry, National Rifles, Veterans' Association, a company of children in Zouave uniform, a colored regiment or two, some Knights Templar, the Fire Department, and a light battery. The line of march was from the State Department to the Capitol, and the guests reached the hill about 2:30 P. M. Prior to their arrival the President had been driven from Senator Jones' house to his room in the Senate wing, and he awaited there the coming of the party. The rotunda of the Capitol, where three weeks ago to-day funeral services were read over the body of the murdered Garfield, was used as a reception hall. The north side of the rotunda was occupied by a company of gentlemen who had been admitted to witness the presentation. General Sherman and staff, a detachment of naval officers, the members of the Supreme Court, and a few members of the House and Senators composed the assembly. Secretary Blaine and M. Outrey led the procession, and the visitors, two abreast, filed into the south side of the rotunda. There was a burst of applause as they entered. Secretary Blaine immediately went over to the Senate in quest of the President, and, after a lapse of ten minutes they returned arm in arm. There was a another movement of applause as the President entered, which he acknowledged by a slight bow, and moved directly to the side of Mr. Outrey, who made a short speech, with many profound bows, which was inaudible to those ten feet distant. The President uttered a few words in reply, and the French Minister then presented him to the French guests.

When the descendants of Lafayette were introduced, the President informed them in choice English that they were doubly welcome, and Mr. Outrey in choice French translated his remarks. The distinguished gentlemen bowed profoundly, and the President passed on to shake the hands of the German visitors.

General Sherman and staff, the officers of the army, and the members of the Supreme Court were introduced to each and all of the guests. The members stood around until the performance was concluded, when a line of march for the Senate chamber was formed. Secretary Blaine and the French Minister again led the procession, followed by the ministers and members of the cabinet.

The Senate was waiting to receive the party, and as they filed in, resplendent in gorgeous uniforms, it reminded one of the scene in the Senate chamber on inauguration day, when all the members of the foreign legations, in court attire, formed a not unimportant part of the invited company. The presiding officer of the Senate, Judge Davis, rapped the Senate to order, and his predecessor, Senator Bayard, in a few well-chosen words welcomed the visitors, and moved that a recess be taken for half an hour, to give each Senator an opportunity to pay his respects to the guests of the Nation. The recess was ordered without dissent.

Judge Davis descended to the lower step of his platform, and, after being introduced by Secretary Blaine to M. Outrey, was presented by the latter to the French, and by the German Charge d' Affaires to the imperial guests. Some of the Western Senators, notably Mr. Ferry, Mr. Sawyer, and Mr. Edgerton, chatted with the guests in their language. The reception was strictly informal, and, after the lapse of half an hour, the visitors departed. The galleries were crowded with spectators during the interval.

To-night the guests, from the State Department balcony, viewed the brilliant display of fireworks at the base of the Washington monument. It is estimated that over 100,000 citizens saw the display. Pennsylvania avenue was illuminated with electric lights, and bands were playing in different parts of the city.

THE BRITISH LEGATION.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—In sending invitations to the foreign representatives to attend the Yorktown Centennial, Secretary Blaine omitted the British legation from motives of delicacy. He thought that, as the event was in celebration of the defeat of the British troops, probably the British embassy might feel aggrieved at being invited to witness it. To-day the Secretary was reliably informed that the members of the British Legation would be pleased at the opportunity to visit Yorktown and witness the celebration. The Secretary immediately extended an informal but cordial invitation to the Legation to accompany him to Yorktown as his guests on his boat, and at the same time he explained why an invitation had not been sent before. The invitation was readily accepted, and the legation assured the Secretary that Great Britain has no feeling of disappointment or jealousy at the success of the American Colonies in the war for their independence; that the British Embassy, representing the sentiment of the cordial friendship their country and people entertain for the United States, will take pleasure in participating in the Yorktown celebration.

PRECAUTIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—A Dublin correspondent, describing the state of affairs there yesterday, in connection with the arrest of Parnell, says the guards all over the city were trebled and police patrols doubled. Dragoons rode through the streets in all directions. Detectives narrowly watched the movements of the League. A posse of police occupied premises close to the League office. A special force of foot and horse artillery has been detached for duty at Kilmainham jail.

The Dublin Evening Mail says the League has resolved to attack Kilmainham jail.

MURDERED JOCKEY.

CARBONDALE, Ill., Oct. 14. After the fair closed here to-day a murder was committed, John H. Potts shooting and instantly killing Kellar Davis. Both were strangers and both horse-jockeys. The origin of the trouble was a private trotting race which was being arranged for to-morrow, and with which the fair managers had nothing to do whatever. After the shooting Potts attempted to escape by running. An officer fired on him and wounded a spectator named Jordan, but not seriously. After a short chase the murderer was captured, and is now under arrest. Neither of the men were in any way connected with the fair, and the killing occurred some time after the exhibition had closed. Potts is a St. Louis man, Davis is from Carmi, Illinois.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876, I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS, followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when, to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced take DR WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles, and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared, and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists. 1

Weather Indications.

"See," said Mrs. Spoopendyke as she laid the paper down, "I see that we are to have rising followed by falling barometer, with northeast to southwest winds, and higher or lower temperature, with clear or partly cloudy weather, and light rains. How is it they contrive to tell so accurately about the weather? Do you understand it?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Spoopendyke; "they do it by observation. They have a man out West observing, and a man down East who observes, and fellows observing around in different parts of the country. They put all their observations together, and we know just what it's going to do."

"I suppose that's what makes the wind so different every morning. When one man's temperature is rising, another's falling; and when one is clear all over, he reports cloudy with——"

"Why, no, no! Each observer sends in what he observes, and then the chief makes up his mind from those reports what the weather will be. Can't you understand?"

"Perfectly," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, rubbing her elbows. "If one sees the barometer rising and another sees it falling, and its cold in one place and cloudy in another, they all say so. But I should think when one hits it right the other would be awful mad."

"What would they get mad about?" demanded Mr. Spoopendyke. You don't imagine that they all get together and fight it out, do you? They take the weather from different points and combine it, and they parcel it out among the different regions. For instance, if it snows in the East and is warm in the West, they strike an average for the Lake region. Now, what is the average between heat and snow?"

"Rain," cried Mrs. Spoopendyke, delighted with her sagacity. "I see how it is now. They take what is usually going on and equalize it all over the country. I'm glad the Democrats weren't elected."

"What have they got to do with it? Do you think a barometer is a politician?"

"No. But if the Democrats had been elected they would have to change it all around, wouldn't they? And the South would have got the best share. That's what the Repub——"

"Blast the Republicans! They've got no more to do with it than you have. You have got an idea that they throw the barometers and observers into one end of a steam-engine, and the weather comes out of the other. They don't make the weather. The weather makes itself. It is the only self-supporting thing about the Government. And those signal men only watch it and tell what it's going to be."

"I suppose when these observers all get together and talk it over, that is called a storm-center, isn't it?"

"That's it!" shouted Mr. Spoopendyke. "You've got the weather now. All you want now is your name painted on the handle and the spring broken to be an umbrella. They don't talk it over; they tell you all they know, and it's fixed up in Washington. They agree on it here, and then they telegraph it all around everywhere. It is generally made in Manitoba and sent down here."

"How wide is it?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, deeply interested. "Because, if it isn't too big I should think they might stop it."

"Wide! It's just a feet wide! Just a feet. Just about as wide as your measly information. How're they going to stop it? Think it jaws the sleeping-car conductor because there's only an upper berth left? Well, it don't. It hires a horse!" howled Mr. Spoopendyke, "and the only way to stop it is to build a fence around it. There was some talk about burning the last one, but the wood was wet."

"Well, my dear, you needn't get angry about it," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly. "I only thought there might be some way they could make some arrangements about it. I think storm centers are horrid, and the observer in Manitoba must have a hard time. If he has to observe much in the winter he must be nearly frozen."

"Does any human being know what you are thinking about?" raved Mr. Spoopendyke. "Do you s'pose he goes around with a spyglass looking behind rocks? Think he prowls around all night with a lantern hunting up storm centers? Got an idea that he runs round under the bed with a broom, like a married woman I know of, and when he catches a center pulls him out by the leg and observes him? He don't do anything of the sort. He has them to spend the evening with him, and gets them drunk and finds out what they're up to. Understand it now? All you want is to whirl round twice and squeak nights to be a weathervane."

"I didn't know how they did it," quoth Mrs. Spoopendyke complacently, "but I see now. If the Prohibitionists had been elected he couldn't have done that, and we should have been in a bad way. Now that I understand it I'll learn the indications every morning. How does the barometer rise and fall?"

"With cork-screws," thundered Mr. Spoopendyke. "Sometimes they haul it up with a stump-machine; then they drop a carpenter's shop on it. When it gets very low they blow it up with gun-cotton. Once in Dakota it got so high they had to dig a hole and ram it down with a spile-driver. Got it now? Begin to see through it? What you need is a box of pills and a conundrum to be an almanac!" And Mr. Spoopendyke jumped out of the house like a conical shot and banged the door after him.

"I never quite understood it before," soliloquized Mrs. Spoopendyke, speculating as to whether she would put the plume on the side or back part of her hat; "but now that he's explained it to me, I wonder they don't observe by steam. It must be awful hard on the poor man." And, having decided about the plume, Mrs. Spoopendyke filled her mouth with pins and crawled under the bed in search of her thimble.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—"I don't see how I'd git along without Mary, nohow," Mrs. Blucher observed, pausing to wipe the perspiration from her aged features and put another ladle of soft soap into the steaming suds, while her daughter's voice at the piano could be distinctly recognized, floating out from the adjoining parlor; "I don't see how I'd get along without that gal, nohow. Al'ays on these days, when I hev the tiringest work, she just picks out her nicest pieces, like 'Sweet rest by-and-by,' and 'Mother's growing old,' and sings 'em fur me afore she goes out on the lawn to play croquet with the other young folks. 'Taint every gal as ud be so thoughtful, I kin tell you. Now, most on 'em ud jest bang away with 'Jordon is a hard road to travel,' or 'Whoop 'em up, Eliza Jane,' but she ain't none o' that sort. She's a pile o' comfort to me—a pile o' comfort;" and Mrs. Blucher fanned herself vigorously with her soiled apron, preparatory to running the clothes through the second water.—Toledo American.

DISEASES OF THE HEART.

BY V. CLARENCE PRICE, M. D.

The Heart is a powerful muscular organ, having four apartments or cavities; its right and left auricle or muscular bag and right and left ventricle or cavity. It is considered the centre of circulation. Of its muscular power we may have some conception when we consider that in man the whole quantity of blood is estimated at about 28 pounds, and that at every pulsation, (which, if regular, is about 75 per minute), an ounce of blood passes through it. Upon this calculation 6 pounds and 3 ounces of blood pass through the heart to the lungs every minute of our lives; (this assertion is, however, made on mere conjecture.) It is very certain that all the blood in the body passes through the heart and lungs at least every ten minutes—six times in every hour—and, upon an average, 144 times every twenty-four hours, from our earliest infancy to decrepit and childish old age.

In every piece of mechanical ingenuity, however simple or complex may be its structure, we find, as indispensible to the whole, at least one great point of attraction or repulsion; so in the human frame we designate the heart, in its simple operations to be the vital organ, which, by its energy and action, gives to every fibre of the frame a principle peculiar to its immediate function. It is the constant spring, or fountain, which, emptying itself into those thousand little streams of the body traverses the whole system and imparts that vigor and animation so indubitable to the maintenance and support of life. This central organ—this sole power—which circulates the blood, is as liable to disease as the other organs of the body. There is no disease to which the human frame is subject, more intense and violent than a functional affection of the heart; and, indeed, so dreadful are some of the sensations attending it, that a patient laboring under its influence, described it as a dreadful sensation, "approaching to a feeling of annihilation," far surpassing any degree of pain. I am not able here to render a complete analysis of the symptoms in attendance on this complaint, but will mention the more prominent of them, that occur in the early stages of the disease.

An oppression and difficulty of breathing often amounting to suffocation or feeling of approaching death. Sometimes a pain is felt over the region of the heart, palpitations, rapid beating or fluttering motion, a feeling of tightness across the chest or distress with short breath, which is increased upon exertion, especially when walking on an ascent or going up a pair of stairs, headache, cold feet and hands, face pale at times, at other times flushed, giddiness, ringing or buzzing in the ear, faintness, shivering, nose bleedings and numbness. The side over the region of the heart sometimes enlarges, pulse interrupted often stops beating for some seconds, sleep confused and painful, with unpleasant dreams and sudden startings. The patient is restless, easily excited, and when so, often unable to speak, quickly fatigued, anxious and nervous. Palpitations of the heart do not occur in every case nor all of the above symptoms, but more or less are present in every case in the commencement of this disease, becoming more and more dreadful as the disease advances, terminating often when the patient is feeling most well, in sudden death. From the great number of cases that we daily encounter we are fully convinced that diseases of the heart are next in frequency to diseases of the lungs.

The incessant play of the passions, which are excitable to a high degree, are calculated to produce many disarrangements in the healthy action of this organ. Whatever tends to overwork the heart, thereby producing interruptions, also a diminution of power, will occasion this disease, as indulgence in intoxicating liquors, long continued use of stimulants, tobacco, unnatural drains upon the system, rheumatism and other long standing ailments, intense study, mental depression, application of the mind with little bodily exercise, great anxiety to be rich, running in debt, working and fretting, trying to pay interest, causing vexations, trouble and disappointments, &c. In the early period of this affection, remedial agents can be used that will arrest its progress. It is the inability of the heart to circulate blood with that freedom which the animal economy requires, that is the cause of diseases of the heart. And with this view of the subject every means should be used for the purpose of "facilitating the circulation of the blood." When the disease has been long neglected and the heart itself fixedly implicated, a cure is seldom if ever obtained, the disease most invariably has a sudden and fatal termination. The necessity of attending to the first symptoms of a disease so sure in its progress to destroy life, cannot but be seen by all. We are pursuing a system of treatment for the cure of all chronic complaints that is of a far different character from that usually entertained—one which cannot fail to recommend itself to every unprejudiced and intelligent individual. The light of science at the present day directs us to the removal of causes, and to the laboratory of the Vegetable Kingdom for the constituents of the reparative process.

We shall make our visits regularly for years, and will be for consultation upon all diseases of the throat, lungs, heart, nerves, blood, etc., on our next visit, at Janesville, Myers house, on Saturday, the 5th of November.

"Sellers' Liver Pills" have been the standard remedy for malaria, liver complaint, costiveness, etc., for fifty years.

Making Newspapers.

"There is nothing in the paper," said a young friend, dashing it to the floor. "No news at all; it's miserable, stupid." Look again, my dear friend, at the carefully-printed columns, the different headings, foreign, home and domestic news, the wit and humor. Think, for a moment, when you gaze at it, how the editor has tried to please you. There is probably no class of men more overworked than these, no labor more wearing than mental labor. It is so easy to cry out: "Nothing in the paper," for those who know little of the drudgery, the painstaking, the hours of mental weariness, the tedious compositions. It is a common thing for a person, when not exactly suited, to exclaim: "There is nothing in the paper." In a railroad car I once observed two gentlemen purchase copies of the same edition of a paper. One soon handed his to a neighbor, exclaiming: "Here, Sam, have the morning paper. There is nothing in it to-day; it is hardly worth reading." The other gentleman continued to be absorbed. Presently the man by his side asked him what interested him so much. "Everything; the paper is well gotten up this morning; the editorials are especially fine." This proves that what pleases one does not suit the other. Be assured it is no child's play to edit and conduct a newspaper; it is a very tedious, important, responsible position, and the man who manages a well-circulated, satisfactory newspaper has almost the wisdom of a Solomon. Let those who doubt take the editor's place for a while; nothing more is needed for a grumbler. Our friend, when she is tempted to make such silly remarks, had better pause to consider whether the fault be in the paper or her silly little head.—Philadelphia Herald.

—To Make Custards to Turn Out.—Mix with the yelks of six eggs well-beaten three half-pints of new milk, three-fourths of an ounce of dissolved isinglass, sweeten, flavor and boil over the fire in a bain-marie until it thickens; pour into a dish and stir until quite cool; then pour into cups to turn out. These you may place upon a dish and surround with jelly.

BRIEFLETS.

—No dust.

—The river is rising.

—Remember that the Sunday evening services now begin at 7 o'clock.

—The corn exchange has now a lady telegraph operator stationed there.

—The rain raised thunder in the middle of the night, and a little lightning.

—A vender of cheap lithographs of Garfield, says he has already sold over 75 of them in this city.

—The funeral services of the late Mrs. C. W. Baker are to be held at All Sou's church, at 10:30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

—W. G. Wheelock has placed in his show window an elegant, ebony cabinet, which merits the attention and praise it attracts from passers-by.

—The cases of those who are charged with tearing down T. F. Murray's billboard came up again in the Municipal Court, to-day, and were adjourned for another week.

—Harry Anderson has shown his enterprise by purchasing four new chairs for his barber shop. The chairs are elegant, and have all the modern improvements, and will be duly appreciated by the many patrons of that popular shop.

—Janesville Grange is to give a social party at it shall next Friday evening, at which Anderson's full band will furnish the music. The floor managers are, E. W. Barker, and B. L. Gage, of the town of Janesville, and H. Proctor, of La Prairie.

—As the Milwaukee exposition is to remain open one week longer, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company will continue for that time the sale of tickets from this point to Milwaukee and return, at $3.10 including the ticket to the exposition.

—The Delavan Republican says: "Prof. J. L. Lamkin gave a sample oration in front of H. R. Doane's last Monday, and took well." The Professor's many friends here will rejoice that his oratorical powers are not weakening any since he had such a wild experience at the Chandler reception in Janesville.

—The third trial of the case of Sexton vs. Snyder, before Justice Prichard ended this afternoon, the jury, after being out over two hours, bringing in a verdict in favor of the defendant. The two previous trials resulted in disagreements, and now that the jury has agreed the plaintiff is not satisfied, but will promptly appeal.

—When the Burr Robbins and Colvin show reaches here next Wednesday it will have traveled this season 7,498 miles. For the past few weeks it has encountered much rain and mud, and on the morning of the 13th, it run into a snow storm near Grand Rapids. Mr. Robbins' health is much better than it was, and it is to be hoped that he will continue to improve and that right speedily.

—The Monroe Sentinel in referring to the death of Mrs. McGinnity, mother of Rev. Father McGinnity says: "Many of our readers knew this estimable old lady and will regret to hear of her demise. While she lived in Monroe, she made many friends who regarded her with veneration and love for her noble qualities. She has gone to her final reward after a well spent life."

—In looking over some old papers, the other day, J. D. King found a complimentary ticket given him by Guiteau, admitting the bearer to the course of lectures which he was to deliver in Janesville. Among other reading matter on the ticket is: "Subjects—1. Christianity Reviewed. 2. Christ's Second Coming. 3. Paul, the Apostle. These lectures are full of new and important ideas, and will be delivered with dramatic effect. No intelligent person should miss them. Charles J. Guiteau."

—Next Monday evening "Humpty Dumpty" is to make fun for all at the Opera house. The Detroit Free Press says: "On the whole this is one of the liveliest and merriest Humpty Dumpty entertainments Detroit has had in several seasons. In the specialty acts are several admirable features. The dog circus evoked the wildest applause." The prices of tickets are way down, where they can easily be reached and taken, and a crowd may be expected.

—Archie Reid is showing a commendable degree of enthusiasm and enterprise in getting in choice and desirable goods, and his dry goods business seems to be increasing at a very rapid rate. The public appreciate enterprise always, and they are evidently taken by his attractive display of goods. He certainly has a fine stock, and his treatment of customers is such that he not only pleases but holds and adds to his trade continually. We are glad to note his prosperity. He merits it.

—There was a shortage discovered in the money order department of the postoffice the other day. The cash at the close of the day refused to balance by just $5. A diligent search for the missing V was instituted, but without avail until a day or two later it was found that a mouse had managed to get into the rear of the money drawer, and taken the bill to make a nest out of. He had it mixed up with some tissue paper, and had already commenced the work of tearing this valuable building material into pieces suitable for his purpose.

—James R. Rouech, of the town of Newark, told his troubles to Judge Patten to-day. He claimed that Alexis Gardo and William Garde, brothers, while engaged in threshing, got to throwing apples, potatoes, etc., and that something hit him in the eye, spoiling its beauty temporarily. The Gardo brothers explained to the Court that all the boys who were at work there got to fooling, and throwing apples, and that they didn't mean to hurt Mr. Rouech, and didn't throw at him directly. The Judge held that as Rouech was not mixed up in the fun-making, they had no business to make him a target, and fined the boys each $1 and costs, the latter amounting to about $22.

—The free art exhibition at Holmstrock's is to be kept open this evening for the accommodation of the public, and the polls will be declared closed at 10 o'clock Monday forenoon, when the votes will be counted, and the premiums awarded. Those who have not yet inspected the pictures and expressed their preference by ballot should therefore lose no time in doing so.

F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit, has recovered from a terrible skin humor, which covered his face and hands, by using Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. This is good news.

Salt Rheum for seventeen years. Helpless for eight years. Unable to walk. Got about on hands and knees. Head, face, neck, arms and legs covered. Cured by Cuticura Remedies. Will McDonald, 2542 Dearborn St., Chicago.

THE CONCERT.

The rain interfered sadly with the Orpheus concert last evening. The audience was small, and the weather naturally proved a dampener on the enthusiasm which the event promised to call forth.

Miss Abbie Carrington, who was the leading attraction of the evening, was at her best, and nobly fulfilled her promise to sing the celebrated "Shadow Song." At her last appearance in this city she was obliged on account of her physical condition, to break the promise to sing it then, and in order to atone for the disappointment felt by the people, she gave it last evening, and she rendered it so grandly that it fully atoned for the past. It alone amply repaid those who braved the storm to attend the entertainment. Her voice was sweet, full, rich and flexible, and showed a wonderful range. The audience was wild with delight, and the encore was so hearty that she responded by singing "Sweet Bessie," a charming bit of song. Miss Carrington is certainly one of the finest concert singers in the land, and justly merits all the high praise which she has received from the press and musical critics of the country. Her stage appearance is not so graceful and pleasing as that of some, but her voice is a grand one, and most skillfully handled.

The Orpheus club made its first public appearance last evening, and gave some good chorus work. "The Song of the Triton" was the most taking number with the audience, and called forth an encore. The music was of a pleasing type, and it was rendered well, though some of the other choruses were of a higher order, and in rendering them the club showed more real skill and power than in this. The club is composed of young ladies and gentlemen who are evidently determined to improve their musical talents, and take advantage of the excellent drill, which Prof. Titcomb is giving them, and they give the promise of still better work in the future.

B. H. Grove, of Chicago, sang an aria "Honor and Arms," in which his rich, full bass voice rang out grandly. Mr. Grove never sang so well before a Janesville audience, and his many friends were delighted to note the steady improvement which he is gaining by his careful and persistent cultivation of his powers.

Owing to the absence of Miss Jessie Crosby, caused by the illness of her father, Miss Ada Pond kindly consented to take her place in a piano duet with Prof. Titcomb. It was a difficult number, but was rendered very skillfully, and pleasingly.

Mr. A. R. Carrington gave a drum solo and a xylophone solo. He is wonderfully skillful in handling these instruments, but any sort of a drum solo, however excellent, seems in very poor taste in a concert of this nature. It gives an air of cheapness to the affair, and it is distasteful to any audience of music-lovers, it being out of place.

Miss Carrington now returns to Fond du Lac, her home, this closing her series of concert appearances, as she expects on the 20th to start for New York to prepare to join the Strakosch opera company, in which she is to take a leading part the coming season. She will carry with her the well wishes of many Janesville admirers.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

C. M. Albenson, who has become well-known in this locality by his detective work for the temperance folk at Edgerton, Clinton, and other places, has just made his report of the work done by him during the past six months as agent of the Chicago Citizens' League, for the North side:

"During this period," he says, "I have originated and prosecuted sixty-five complaints for the infraction of the laws and ordinances prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to minors and drunkards, and prohibiting minors from playing games of chance. Of these sixty-five cases seven were dismissed by the justices, and in seventeen a nolle prosequi was entered, for good reasons, on my own motion. In the remaining forty-one cases, twenty-seven were fined by the justices, and six of the defendants held to the criminal court, two of which were discharged by the grand jury, and four have not yet been indicted, leaving eight cases still pending before justices. The total amount of fines inflicted, including costs of court, was $271. I have also been instrumental in sending two confirmed drunkards, one of whom was a saloon-keeper, to the Washington home, and visited thirty-two drunkards' families. In addition to these labors, I have done some work in an adjoining State, which serves to show the salutary influence the league is exerting outside the city."

The organization is not a total abstinence or prohibitory one, but its aim is to enforce the present laws, and much of the work has been to prevent the sale to minors and drunkards. In his section of the city there were during the past six months 379 minors arrested for crime, as compared with 433 arrested during the same time last year. This decrease in view of the increasing population, he credits to the work of this league.

The indications to-day are, partly cloudy weather and rain, southwesterly winds, lower barometer, and higher temperature.

LOSS BY LIGHTNING.

About 3 o'clock this morning the fine residence of James S. Hopkins, located about two miles south of Indian Ford, was totally destroyed by fire, supposed to have been caused by lightning. The family did not feel any shock, but as there were several very heavy claps of thunder about that time, and as there was no other apparent cause for the blaze, the lightning is made responsible for it. The flames spread quickly and there was no power to stay them until they had burned the building to its very foundation. The house was a large brick-veneered building, and was built by Mr. Hopkins in 1870 at a cost of about $5,000. It was insured in the town company of Harmony for $2,000, and in the Niagara Fire insurance company, with Dimock & Hayner's agency, for $1,000 more. There was also some insurance on the furniture, but not enough to cover more than one-quarter of the loss.

IRRITATION OF THE SCALP.

An Authentic Testimony.

Gentlemen: For five years I have been greatly troubled with dandruff, with a severe itching of the scalp, and my hair falling out. I have tried almost every known remedy, all proving worthless. Seeing BURNETT'S COCOAINE and BURNETT'S KALLISTON advertised, I procured a bottle of each, and am happy to state that the dandruff is completely removed, and no itching remains.

Cuticura

PYÆMIA

Or Blood Poisoning, which Results in Abscesses, Ulcers, Sores, Carbuncles, Boils and Itching Humors, Cured.

FEVER SORE.

What I tell you is the truth, told for no other purpose but to testify to the merits of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Mr. Frederick Yeaton, of this town, has been troubled for years with a Fever Sore on one of his legs. Last fall and all winter he could hardly walk a step. I induced him to take your REMEDIES. He has taken about four bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and used the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally. His leg to-day is almost well, and he walks with ease. It was a sight to behold—black, and swollen very badly. I wish you could see his leg to-day. The change would astonish you.

SALT RHEUM.

Will McDonald, 2542 Dearborn St., Chicago, gratefully acknowledges a cure of Salt Rheum on head, neck, face, arms and legs for seventeen years; not able to walk except on hands and knees for one year; not able to help himself for eight years; tried hundreds of remedies; doctors pronounced his case hopeless; permanently cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

GREAT BLOOD MEDICINES

The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure diseases of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CHAS. A. WILLIAMS, Providence, R. I.

TREATMENT.
